

2025 Annual Report

AMERICAN FARM BUREAU
FOUNDATION FOR AGRICULTURE

Letter from the Chairman, Zippy Duvall

As interest in where our food comes from continues to grow, the American Farm Bureau Foundation for Agriculture remains committed to helping learners of all ages better understand the role agriculture plays in their daily lives. In 2025, our Foundation continued to step up by providing trusted, engaging agricultural education resources and experiences that connect classrooms and communities to farming and ranching.

Our team expanded its library of classroom-ready resources to help educators bring agriculture to life. New and updated Ag Mags and educator guides gave teachers fresh tools to introduce students to agriculture in all its forms.

Through the Foundation's publishing venture, Feeding Minds Press, we continued to share agriculture's story with young readers. We released two new titles in 2025: I Love Blueberries, written by Shannon Anderson and illustrated by Jaclyn Sinquett, and Our Christmas Tree Farm, written by Lisa Amstutz and illustrated by Christina Forshay. These stories help young readers understand how agriculture touches their daily lives.

The Foundation's work in science-based agricultural education continues to grow. We supported educators nationwide through professional development opportunities, including two On the Farm STEM® train-the-trainer events that empowered teachers to bring real-world agriculture into their own classrooms. Our curriculum earned national recognition by receiving the prestigious Next Generation Science Standards Design Badge.

In addition, we introduced new ways for students to engage in problem-solving through agriculture. A new Purple Plow Challenge invited middle- and high-school students to tackle real-world water challenges facing farms today, combining creativity, engineering, and critical thinking.

Across everything we do, our goal remains the same: to help young people grow into informed consumers who understand how farmers and ranchers work every day to provide a safe, sustainable food, fiber, and renewable fuel supply. This work is only possible because of donors, volunteers, and educators across the country who are helping shape the next generation of agricultural innovators.

Thank you for helping further our mission of agricultural literacy.
